HANGAR 1 The Flying Heritage Collection is housed in a pair of working hangars. In the first, the exhibits focus on the home fronts and innovations of the major combatants—the United States, Japan, Russia, Germany, and Great Britain.

HANGAR 2 (Not shown) The exhibits in the second hangar follow each nation's combat machines into the five theaters of war, where harsh environmental conditions influenced the use and development of technology.

Visitors examine one-of-a-kind aircraft during FHC's Winter Educational Series. Speakers range from aeronautical engineers to military historians and each lecture features a different educational adventure through FHC's two hangars.

Spectators of all ages gather to watch FHC's rare warbirds take to the skies. Our skillful pilots perform formation fly-bys, high-speed and low-speed passes, providing photo and video opportunities for the avid photographer.

EVENTS

FREE FLY DAYS

Fly Days, scheduled throughout the summer, are an opportunity to watch rare vintage aircraft soar through the skies just like they did during WWII, and meet the talented pilots who fly the planes.

TANKFEST NORTHWEST

TankFest Northwest is a Memorial Day event for the entire family that brings history alive and honors the military innovations of the past, as meticulously restored WWII-era tanks and vintage artillery put on an explosive show for the crowd.

EDUCATION SERIES

Interact with professional staff and guest experts to learn about the astounding aircraft that make up FHC's world-renowned collection. Visitors will experience premium programming that allows them to get closer to FHC's aircraft and artifacts than ever before.

OUTREACH

Whether in our hangars or in local classrooms, FHC is committed to inspiring minds of all ages. The collection is a premiere field trip destination for social studies, engineering, and aviation classes as well as enthusiasts.

After each free Fly Day, aircraft enthusiasts lineup to meet the pilots who fly the FHC's amazing aircraft and take home a free keepsake photo.

HOME OF FLYING Warbirds

Experience the iconic military machines that changed the world. The Flying Heritage Collection (FHC) houses a unique assemblage of rare aircraft and vehicles from the World War II era. In a few short years, rapid leaps in technology coupled with an age of great global strife motivated designers to build some of the most fantastic, and fearsome, weapons of warfare ever conceived.

Philanthropist Paul G. Allen established the Flying Heritage Collection in the 1990s to preserve these icons of technology born from turmoil. These rare aircraft and ground weapons took decades to locate, acquire, and meticulously restore to their original wartime condition. Not only does each artifact appear exactly as it did in combat, most are fully functional. On scheduled Fly Days, you can watch these vintage planes take to the skies once again.

Many of the machines in this collection served their nations in action. Some were recovered where they fell—buried in Europe, forgotten in the Pacific, or abandoned on the frozen battlefields above the Arctic Circle. Though these weapons were produced in enormous quantities, only a few survive today. Some of the FHC's artifacts are the only examples of their kind left in the world.

Introduced in 1935, the Messerschmitt Bf 109 was the first truly modern fighter. With its all-metal stressed-skin construction, mono-wing design, enclosed cockpit, and retractable landing gear, it had no equal. This aircraft is one of the most authentic examples in the world.

Free parking is available just outside the hangar facility.
